

Jessica Stroh, Young Children's Division Instructor

Jessica Stroh is a dancer, choreographer, and teacher originally from Ocala, Florida. She graduated with a Bachelor of Fine Arts from the University of South Florida in 2015. Under scholarships, Jessica further trained with Bodytraffic, Repertory Dance Theatre, Alonzo King's LINES Ballet, and USF's Dance in Paris Program. In 2016, Jessica moved to New York City where she had the honor of working and collaborating with Colleen Thomas Dance, Dugal Dance Projects, Alexeya EM, Rosie DeAngelo, Bryce Dance Company, and BodyStories: Teresa Fellion Dance. In NYC, Jessica had the privilege of teaching with Greenhouse Arts Center and Global Community Charter School. Jessica has choreographed, performed, and taught in NYC, North Carolina, Florida, Texas, Ho Chi Minh City, Vietnam and Paris, France. She is the recipient of Brooklyn-based Spoke the Hub's 2018 People's Choice Award where she presented an evening-length work with collaborator, Laura Mobley. Jessica now resides in Austin, TX and joyfully teaches and creates with her performance company, Alt Project, alongside co-founder, Laura Mobley and is thrilled to be joining the Ballet Austin Young Children's Division.
