FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

AUSTIN, Texas (April 5, 2023) – Ballet Austin closes the 2022/23 season with one of Stephen Mills’ most treasured full-length works, Cinderella. This classic fairy tale showcases Mills’ enchanting storytelling, exquisite classical choreography, and signature humor that makes this ballet one of Austin’s all-time audience favorites. With a compiled score by Alexander Glazunov performed live by the Austin Symphony Orchestra, Stephen Mills’ Cinderella includes two evening performances and two matinees over Mother’s Day weekend at the Long Center for the Performing Arts May 12-14.

A CLASSIC FAIRYTALE BALLET

Cinderella made its premiere at Bass Concert Hall in Austin in 1997, as the first full-length ballet conceptualized and choreographed by Stephen Mills, Ballet Austin’s Sarah & Ernest Butler Family Fund Artistic Director. Creating a compilation from select works by Russian composer Alexander Glazunov (1865-1936), Mills brings his timeless story to life with an enchanting musical score that departs from Sergei Prokofiev’s 1944 score often associated with the fairytale ballet. Excerpts selected by Mills come from a variety of Glazunov’s most popular compositions, including Raymonda, Scenes de Ballet, Concert Waltz No. 2, and The Seasons.

While there are many variations on the theme of Cinderella, including prominent storylines from Chinese, Italian, French, and German cultures, Charles Perrault, a French author, wrote the most recognized story of Cinderella. Written in 1697, Perrault’s version is said to have been the version used by Walt Disney to create his animated masterpiece. Francois Decombe Albert choreographed the first known ballet based on Perrault’s tale, which premiered at the Kings Theatre in London in 1822.

Mills’ production of this fairy tale follows the classic Cinderella storyline and her path from “rags to riches.” The evil stepsisters, beloved fairy godmother, and magical pumpkin that transforms into a carriage all delight audiences. Filled with timeless humor and enduring romance, the ballet features exquisite choreography, elaborate costumes, and lavish set designs that create a charming experience for the whole family.
BEFORE THE CLOCK STRIKES SHOWTIME

Mills says of the ballet: “Audiences adore Ballet Austin’s Cinderella because it is romantic, humorous, and true to the story you remember about a young woman who, thanks to a kind heart, generous spirit, and fairy godmother, trades her unfortunate circumstances for the love of her life and her own chance at ‘happily ever after.’ If you are new to ballet, Cinderella is a great introduction to the classics in terms of choreography and music. Cinderella is perfect for all ages and a fun-filled way to mark both Mother’s Day weekend and the conclusion of Ballet Austin’s 2022/23 performance season.”

Cinderella is a timeless ballet filled with whimsical fantasy. The enduring rags-to-romance story offers the promise of “happily ever after” with a dose of humor, mixed with the majesty of classical ballet. As the final production of Ballet Austin’s 2022/23 season, audiences of all ages will enjoy this classic fairy tale of perseverance and love.
