

Juliet Newman, Teaching Assistant

Juliet started her love of dance very early in life. She started ballet from the time she was four and spent her time in dance studios exploring different styles and developing a deep love for movement. At thirteen, she found a new passion in a style called Country Ballroom-and was hooked. That love led her to move to Austin to pursue a career as a professional ballroom dancer and instructor. She successfully taught and danced at that ballroom studio for three years. Eventually her path led her back to school and ballet. Dance continues to be a core part of who she is. She is excited to be her at Ballet Austin to bring experience, energy, and love for dance into everything.
